

CMA MODELS A CUT ABOVE

For decades the models of the cars we love have decorated selected spots in our homes and offices.

They are our reminders of memories past and futures dreamed.

There have always been models of automobiles. Initially they were either expensive Scratch Built units or far different quality Production units priced appropriately to the market. Most of us possess the latter.

Demand and modern technology have filled the gaps. Between the personalized "clean sheet" concept and today's far better Production models, Custom built models begin life as production units and are refitted with better quality components. These bridge the gap between a custom built unit and the toys we let grandchildren play with, under supervision of course.

But the market has evolved and now supports a relatively affordable class of model titled the Limited Editions. These are closest to the custom built, due to the fact that they are built to low predetermined numbers, considerably more attractive, affordable, and correspondingly more likely to appreciate in value. And that makes them most desirable.

CMA founder, Marshall Buck, has been producing scratch built, custom and limited production models for discerning collectors for over 35 years. The company also brokers unique models.
